The Challenges of Fulfilling Planning and Housing Expectations for the City of Los Angeles An Evening with Kevin Keller

Housing and policy direction for a city as large and diverse as Los Angeles requires focused executive and political leadership. An overarching vision must respond to varied expectations and implementation challenges.

How does Mayor Eric Garcetti view the city's future and how does the mayor intend to use his office to fulfill a vision that improves basic city services and promotes commerce, development, employment opportunity, and meeting varied housing demands, concurrent with measures to advance stable communities across the city?

How will the proposed streamlining of Planning, Building and Safety and the City's other development services balance efficiency with the public's desire for more livable and sustainable neighborhoods?
